

Everybody knows (but may not admit it)

- Many more people in the future will require Care

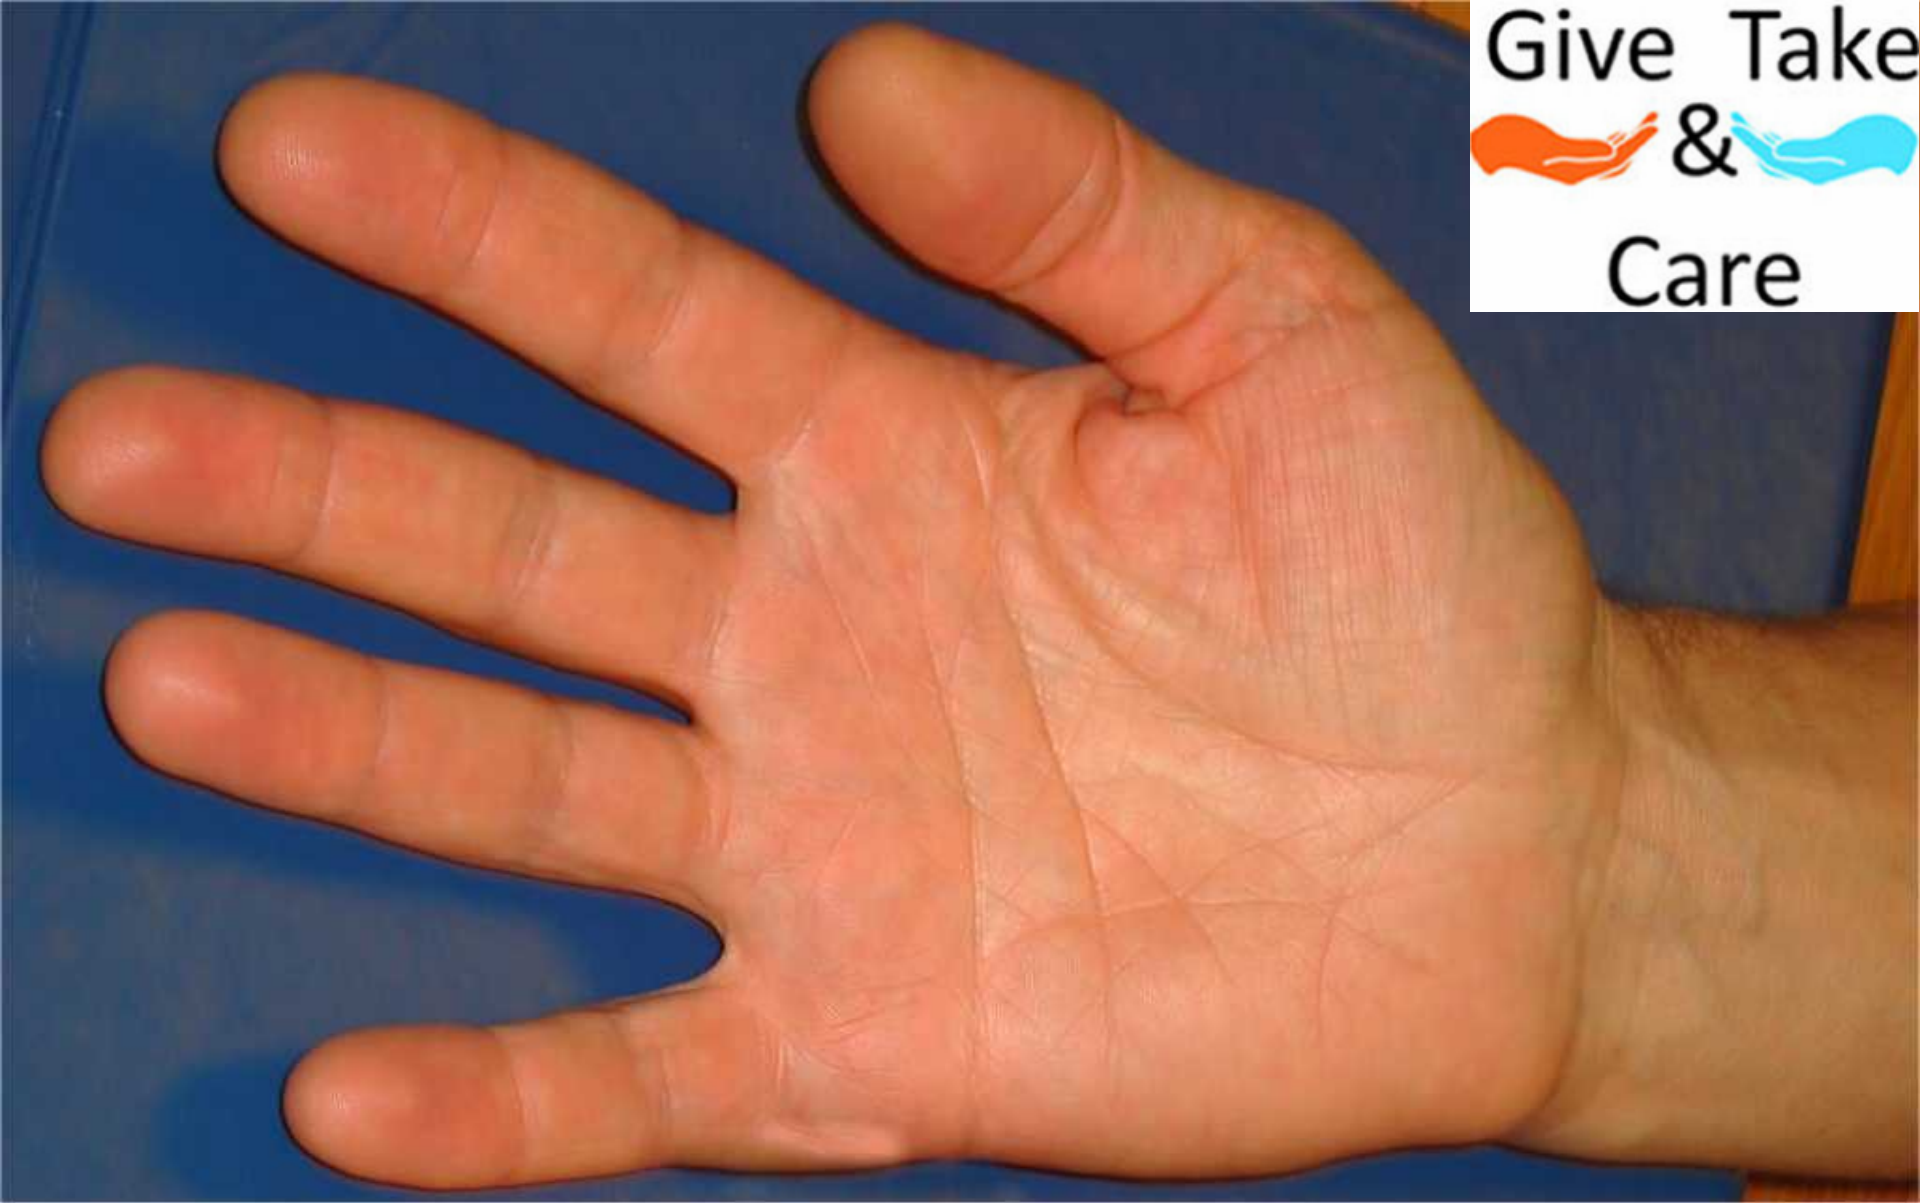

- Care provided by family and Friends (informal Carers) may decrease, because economic and demographic circumstances.

- No government in a developed country will have the economic and “people resources” to provide an adequate standard of Quality of Life for the increased elderly population

- No adjustment between the boundaries of the NHS and Social Care, will have more than a marginal effect.

- The burden on the NHS must be reduced.
